Merchant Response

The merchant's position is that the transaction identified by order_WIN_TEST1788103856 was fulfilled in accordance with the purchase agreement and therefore the chargeback claim of fraud is unfounded. The order amount was 2500.0 INR and the payment was captured at the time of purchase.

Evidence from the logistics API confirms that the shipment was completed. The record for order_WIN_TEST1788103856 shows a status of DELIVERED, with the courier listed as BlueDart. The tracking number assigned to the parcel was AWB-103856. The delivery event is timestamped at 2026-08-28T15:31:02.914680+00:00, indicating that the package reached the destination on the specified date and time. The delivery was recorded after a single attempt, and proof of delivery (POD) is available at the URL https://cdn.aegisflow.mock/pod/order_WIN_TEST1788103856.pdf. The shipping address associated with the order is Koramangala, Bangalore, Karnataka, matching the address provided by the customer at checkout.

Customer relationship management data further supports the merchant's claim. The CRM API entry for order_WIN_TEST1788103856 notes that there has been one recent support ticket, which was closed. The chat summary from that ticket indicates that the customer's concern related to the color of the item being incorrect, with no mention of non-delivery or receipt issues. No refund has been issued for this order, and the fraud risk score assigned to the transaction is 0.15, reflecting a low likelihood of fraudulent activity. The absence of any refund action demonstrates that the merchant has not acknowledged any failure to deliver the goods.

Taken together, the delivery confirmation, the available proof of delivery document, and the low fraud risk assessment provide a clear factual basis that the goods were delivered to the customer's address as intended. The customer's communication does not dispute receipt of the item, only the suitability of its color, which is unrelated to the chargeback reason of fraud. Accordingly, the merchant submits this evidence to demonstrate that the transaction was legitimate, fulfilled, and that the chargeback request does not meet the criteria for reversal.
