Merchant Response

The merchant asserts that the transaction for order_WIN_TEST1788505427 was fulfilled in accordance with the purchase agreement and therefore does not constitute a fraudulent charge. The logistics record confirms that the shipment was delivered to the customer's address in Koramangala, Bangalore, Karnataka. The delivery status is recorded as DELIVERED, with a single delivery attempt made on 2026-09-02 at 07:03:50 UTC. The courier responsible for the shipment was BlueDart, and the tracking identifier associated with the parcel is AWB-505427. Proof of delivery is available through a downloadable PDF at the provided URL, indicating that the parcel was received by the intended recipient. The order amount of 2500.0 INR was charged in Indian Rupees, matching the amount shown in the dispute details.

Customer interaction logs do not indicate any claim of non-delivery. The CRM system shows one support ticket related to this order, which has been closed. The ticket summary records that the customer requested a refund because the color of the item was incorrect, with no mention of the item being undelivered. No refund has been issued for this order, and the merchant's internal fraud risk assessment assigns a low risk score of 0.15, suggesting minimal likelihood of fraudulent activity.

Taken together, the delivery confirmation, the availability of proof of delivery, and the absence of any customer communication alleging non-receipt substantiate the merchant's position that the goods were provided as promised. The single ticket concerning a color discrepancy does not relate to the core dispute reason of chargeback fraud, and the merchant has not taken any refund action in response to that issue. Consequently, the evidence demonstrates that the transaction was legitimate, the product was delivered, and the claim of fraud lacks factual support. The merchant therefore requests that the chargeback be denied and the disputed amount of 2500.0 INR be retained.
